WHY WE STAY AT HOME.

Due To the Only McNichols.

Why do we stay at home, you ask, in the dusty and dreary heat. Lonely and dull to the very task. In the sunlight that bathes the street? I will tell in the fewest words. Such as you'll understand. We seek to follow the streams or birds, Nor fly to the ocean's sands. Once on a time we sought such joys Like others with no other aim. We gadded about in a din of noise, Where extravagance knew no end. We had a room just four feet eight. A ceiling to touch our nose. And in which we could not lie straight— And that was the least of our woes. Seeing the world, my wife declared, Mixing with great and high. The bigger fool she and I. We had a cent when things were squarred— The bigger fool she and I. What do we do in the summer now? Why, drop in sometime and see. Our home is an Eden spot, I vow! McNichols enlightens us. Windows are shrouded and hung with lace, Everything new and dainty. In a folding bed we recline, Bathing in the soft moonlight. The care of all our clan. Our house is fit for even Queen Mab— All made on the installment plan. Lucky man and smart man to know a good thing when he sees it. Who would endure the discomfort of travel in the hot weather when they can rest in such a home as can be made by (Trade Mark) THE ONLY McNICHOLS. 1015, 1022, 1024, Market St. P. S. Summer prices lower yet than ever. Everything beautiful, and this is the best plan on earth.

MONDAY, JUNE 25, 1888.

The indications for twenty-four hours, commencing at 3 p. m. to-day, for Missouri are: Stationary temperature; light local rains; light to fresh variable winds.

There are indications that BOSS FILLIE has played his last card.

Our sympathy is extended to KERRIS and his fellow-workers.

This colored statement will probably walk home from Chicago.

This great conspiracy was not badly managed, but it did not get there.

It is now in order to look up HARRISON's record on the Chinese question and on the labor question.

A HARRISON campaign without log cabins and hard cider in it will not stir up any enthusiasm.

Faking editors of morning papers are not expected to give the Post-Dispatch complimentary notices.

Among the distinguished dead-of-last week in Chicago are DREW, INGERSOLL, FRED DOUGLASS and FORAKER.

ELKINS and KERRIS had two strings to their bow. They named BLANKS and HARRISON and between the two corralled the nomination.

SUBSCRIBERS leaving the city for a summer vacation can have their Post-Dispatch forwarded to any address by leaving notice at the counting-room.

The Chinese plank was put in the platform on purpose to down HARRISON. He has downed it, but the end is not yet. They will down one another.

IF GEN. BEN HARRISON cannot beat JOHN SHERMAN flopping on the Chinese question it will do him no good to carry Indiana. The Pacific slope States-outvoted Indiana.

It is said that a majority of the Missouri delegation to Chicago were for GREENHAM, but this circumstance should not prejudice GREENHAM's reputation among respectable men.

CLEVELAND is not VAN BUREN and 1888 is not 1860. It goes without saying that STEVE ELKINS' partner in the Montana cattle business, Gen. BEN HARRISON, is not his own grandfather.

The Post-Dispatching telegraphers all these weeks get it. When it gets any news from the exchanges it does not put it under the fraudulent heading of "Special by Telegraph."

PERHAPS one reason why the Journalist of Florida has not taken a firmer hold on the national affairs is because the Florida editor has an antiquated habit of clipping his special telegrams out of his exchanges.

An enemy of JOHN SHERMAN instigated one of the colored delegates in Chicago to call SHERMAN the friend of the colored man "because he paid our expenses here." SHERMAN's friend of the colored man, and in the case of ELKINS

PINKSTON he showed that he was also the friend of the colored woman, but his whole career exonerates him from the imputation of paying the expenses of any delegations to Chicago.

A WORD TO BRER JONES.
Brer JONES of Florida is worried in mind and gives voice to his anguish over the circumstance that the people of St. Louis gladly pay 5 cents a copy for the Post-Dispatch while they decline to take the Republic at 2 cents. But the reason for this should be apparent even to the tender optics of Brer JONES. In yesterday's Republic there appeared under the headline "LANGSTYR and GERHARDT—They Will Be Married in September," a "special to the Republic," dated New York, June 23, the chief part of which was taken word for word from the Chicago Tribune of Saturday morning. To make the matter clear we reprint in parallel columns extracts from the Chicago Tribune of Saturday, which reached here Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and from Brer JONES' Republic of Sunday morning:

Chicago Tribune. St. Louis Republic.
GERHARDT—LANGSTYR and GERHARDT AND TAY NUPITALS.

The Horseman and the Actress to Be Married in September. Special to the Republic. New York, June 23. (Special.)—The explicit announcement of matrimony in September for Gerhardt and Mrs. Langstyr was made a few days ago at a dinner given at her New York residence in the West Twenty-third street. Two of the guests were James Gordon Bennett and ex-Judge Gunning S. Bedford, old cronies of Gerhardt, although they are a decade older than he. On this occasion Bennett offered as a toast the speedy union of the fast hostess and Gerhardt, who sat in the chair of honor at her right.

"Thank you," Mrs. Langstyr responded, "and your good wish is going to be realized soon."

"How soon?" Bedford asked.

"May I answer that?" Gerhardt inquired of Mrs. Langstyr.

She gave permission, and he then said that the wedding would occur early in September, possibly a little sooner—in San Francisco, to which city they will journey, according to present arrangements, in July.

Mrs. Langstyr and Gerhardt have purchased adjoining farms comprising altogether thousands of acres, in a valley of the Howells Mountains in California. There they will spend their honeymoon, and subsequently the lady's vacations between her seasons on the stage.

This is not all. The "special to the Republic" telling of the trick played on SHERMAN and INGERSOLL in the Eden Musee by HERMAN OELRICHS was stolen bodily from the exchanges of Saturday. The attempt to palm such stuff off on the public as special dispatches is a fraud and an imposition.

When Brer JONES announced that he had placed his small savings in the lean treasury of the old Republic there was a certain sympathy felt for him as for a harmless imbecile who had been confounded out of his money. But he is evidently a fraud of the first water, and his attempt to impose on the intelligent reading public of St. Louis with petty swindles that would not go down in the Okefenokee Weekly Everglade explains fully why the afore-said reading public pay 5 cents for a newspaper with news in it and do not pay 3 cents for a journalistic swindle with fakes in it.

THE FAKE AGAIN.

The following bogus items of news appeared under the heading of a special dispatch from Denver, dated June 23, in the mining news of yesterday's Globe-Democrat:

The Hernes is working but a small force of men just now, though the mine is reported to have very large ore bodies in sight of heavy lead carbonate in siliver.

The El Paso is expected to reach mineral every day. This property is lauded with one of the best hoisting and pumping plants in the country.

Their bogus character was fully exposed by a special dispatch from Leadville in an adjoining column, giving the following information:

The Hernes, which has more silver lead ore in sight than any mine in the State, closed down last Wednesday.

The El Paso, immediately north of the Little Miami and east of the Forepaugh, Tipote and Olive Branch, made its first strike of ore on Wednesday last, at a depth of about 200 feet from the surface.

The editor of the Globe-Democrat would do well to get his mining specials exclusively from his exchanges, and thus avoid the humiliation of exposures which must be painful to the sensitive mind.

ANDRY STEALINGS.

There was a stolen Saturday night from C. B. Warren's room, 217 First street. J. B. O'Brien, who was in the room, disappeared during the night and Warren has requested his arrest.

Six items, valued at $1, were stolen at 830 Main street, from Thomas Gellie's possession, on Sunday night.

Charles E. Brown reports that a chest of tools were stolen from him from his Franklin avenue.

"BEN" HARRISON.

Sketch of the Standard-Bearer of the Republican Party.

Early History of the Presidential Nominee of the Chicago Convention.

The Story of the Life of the Favorite Son of Indiana, Who, After a Hard Fight, Won From All Competitors—Other National Conventions in Which He Figured as a Candidate—His War Record—His Antecedents—His Political Life—Now Engaged in the Practice of Law at Indianapolis.

Benjamin Harrison of Indiana, whose term in the United States Senate expired March 4, 1887, was born at North Bend, O., August 20, 1833, and comes of a distinguished family. His father, John Harrison, was a member of the Ohio General Assembly and participated in the trial of Charles I., signing the death warrant of the English king. He subsequently paid for this with his life, being hanged October 13, 1860. His descendants emigrated to America, and in early life was noted for his studious habits. In history was Benjamin Harrison of Virginia, who, as a member of the House of Burgesses, and later of the Colonial Congress, bore an active and leading part in the patriotic movements of the Revolutionary period; was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; three times elected Governor of Indiana, and a member of the convention that ratified the Constitution. He was the father of Gen. William Henry Harrison, who was elected President of the United States in 1840. President Harrison and the grandfather of John Harrison entered Miami University, Oxford, O., at the age of 16 and was graduated at 18. Prof. David Swing says that Harrison, though one of the youngest students at Oxford, was a place and a lawyer in his new house, and before 1860 he was also considered one of the ablest political speakers in the State, taking an early interest in politics, which he has since maintained. The Fremont campaign of 1880 first saw him upon the stump, and the time on he has been a conspicuous figure in every presidential canvass. Long before the war he was pitted against Hendricks, Voorhees and other men older than himself, in the exciting years that led up to the election of 1860.

In 1860 Mr. Harrison was nominated for reporter of the Supreme Court, and was elected. In July, 1862, Gov. Morton, under the call of the President for 300,000 three-year troops, requested Harrison to assist in recruiting the Third Division of the Twenty-third Army Corps, under that call the quota from each district being one regiment. Harrison's was the first recruiting commission issued by the Governor for the Seventeenth Regiment, bearing date of July 14, 1862, and the first saw him upon the stump, and the time on he has been a conspicuous figure in every presidential canvass. Long before the war he was pitted against Hendricks, Voorhees and other men older than himself, in the exciting years that led up to the election of 1860.

He soon won a place as a lawyer in his new house, and before 1860 he was also considered one of the ablest political speakers in the State, taking an early interest in politics, which he has since maintained. The Fremont campaign of 1880 first saw him upon the stump, and the time on he has been a conspicuous figure in every presidential canvass. GO WITH THE MEN who had chosen him their leader. He refused to ask any other man to go where he would not willingly go himself, and he was elected in the field. After a variety of service in Kentucky and Tennessee during the next eighteen months, up to January, 1864, Col. Harrison's regiment was formally assigned to the First Brigade (War's) of the Third Division of the Twenty-third Army Corps, and with this organization he served until the close of the war. At Resaca he captured the enemy's line and four guns, and at Peach Tree Creek, while commanding a brigade, he gained such a signal victory that Gen. Hooker promoted him to the rank of Brigadier-General. During the absence of Gen. Harrison in the field the Democratic Supreme Court declared the office of Supreme Court Reporter vacant and another person was elected to the position. The General was given a leave of absence in the fall of 1864, with orders from the War Department to report to Gov. Morton. During that thirty days he again made a canvass of the State and was re-elected for another term. Then he rejoined the army, was in the siege of Nashville, served until the surrender of Johnston, and was with his command at the final review of the Union forces in Washington.

In 1868 he declined a re-election as Reporter of the Supreme Court and resumed the practice of law.

In 1876 he became the candidate for Governor under peculiar circumstances, having been placed on the ticket by the State Central Committee to fill a vacancy caused by the decline of the regular nominee. He was out of the State when it was done, and vainly protested. Burdened with the shadow of impending defeat, he went into the field, and almost was Chairman of the Indiana delegation to Chicago, and threw the weight of that State to Garfield. That year he was the head and front of the two campaigns in his State. In 1880 the Indiana Legislature elected him to the United States Senate, where his career, if not particularly brilliant, has been respectable. His name was also mentioned for President in the convention of 1880. In the Senate he took part in nearly all important debates, and was regarded as a strong speaker. As a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations he assisted in the consideration and amendment, and united in the unanimous report of the Chinese restriction bill introduced by Senator Fair of Nevada. On the contract labor bill Senator Harrison made a speech favoring the wholesale emigration of contracted labor, being careful, however, to reserve the freest possible voluntary emigration of those who desired to become American citizens. He also spoke on the alien ownership of land, taking a decided stand against the sale of foreign lands to the exclusion of the actual settlers. Since the expiration of his Senatorial term he has resumed the practice of law at Indianapolis.

THE BLACK MAHOMET.

An Interview With the So-Called Moses of the Colored People.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.
EVANSTON, June 25.—The reported strange prophecies of the modern Black Mahomet near Rochester, Ky., whose weird acts are just now creating much excitement throughout the country, is the subject of much speculation among those who have been to see him. The Post-Dispatch correspondent from this city has visited the prophet at his humble home and brings back a graphic report of his interview. He is a tall, dark, heavily bearded man, with a stern, almost morose expression. He is dressed in a simple, dark, heavy coat, and wears a dark cap. He is surrounded by a large number of followers, who are all dressed in simple, dark clothing. The prophet is seated on a low stool, and his followers stand around him, some with their hands clasped in prayer, and others with their hands on their heads. The prophet is speaking in a low, hoarse voice, and his words are being repeated by his followers. The prophet is claiming to be a descendant of the prophet Mahomet, and is claiming to have received a revelation from God. He is claiming to be the "Black Mahomet," and is claiming to be the "Moses of the Colored People."

How Judge Cady Settled the Fight Between Traps and Performers Little Scott and Little Walters, "The Woman With the Iron Jaw"—A Peculiar Case of Disturbing the Peace—Craps Players Taught a Lesson—Some Queer Criminals.

A crowd of negro "craps" players were taught a lesson this morning by Judge Cady, who they are not apt to forget in a hurry. Over a week ago Officer Pat Hannon, raised a negro craps game run by Alex Wells in the alley in the rear of a barber-shop on Spruce, between Sixth and Seventh streets. He captured the proprietor and seven men, Nathan Sears, Ed Butler, Albert Wilson, Jackson Doyle, Walter Woodruff, Andrew Farrell and Andrew Gibson. When the cases came up at City Attorney Butler permitted them to take a continuance for a week to enable them to raise the money for costs in the case. This morning the cases came up and he agreed to enter nolle prosequi in two of the cases and let the other six defendants off on payment of costs. Wells had agreed to pay the costs for the men as is the custom for a proprietor of a game. The men were arrested in his place. Instead of doing it, however, he went about among the players and endeavored to get each to pay his own costs. They all pleaded guilty and Judge Cady, who was annoyed at the way they were acting, fined Wells, the proprietor, $100 and each of the seven men $5 and costs. The announcement of the fine created the greatest consternation among the negroes, and they all agreed to pay the costs as they were. Wells, in fact, was particularly anxious to pay up. Instead of paying $50 costs in each of six cases, or $30 in all, their fines had been reduced to $50 each. They all agreed to pay them and go to the Work-house. They will probably go to the Work-house.

THE SHELLEHORNERS AGAIN.

Eva Shellehorner applied for a divorce from Ferdinand Shellehorner. She is not the first appearance of the couple in the divorce court. They were married October 15, 1887, and the separation took place June 17, 1887. Mrs. Shellehorner alleged that her husband rendered her condition intolerable. He abused her, whipped, beat and struck her constantly without any provocation and showed words of filthy abuse upon her at all times. He was engaged in drinking and carousing around and she utterly neglected his family. He was in the habit of spending his money on the support of the family. There were three children by the marriage and the mother asked for their custody.

FATHER O'HALLORAN CONTINUES HIS WAR ON THE SCHOOL AUTHORITIES.

He Attacks School Superintendent Rafter, John Joyce and Deane's Rush From the Altar—Mrs. Rush Leaves Her Few and Slams the Door—A Fight Narrowly Avoided—News and Notes Gathered on the Other Side of the River To-Day.

Rev. Father O'Halloran, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, expressed his opinion on the appointment of Mr. Frank V. Rafter as school perintendent at 7 o'clock mass yesterday.

ere were differences between him and Mr ter, he said, and he did not wish to have him at the head of the school. Mr. John Joyce, Father O'Halloran said, had absented himself purposely from a meeting at which Mr. Ratter was appointed, and by so doing had proven untrue to the interests of the people by whose influence he is elected. He also criticized Mr. Dennis Nash severely for voting for Mr. Ratter in opposition to the church people, to whom he also mainly owed his election. While Father O'Halloran was severely commenting on Mr. Rush's so-called "treachery," a striking incident occurred. Mrs. Rush, who occupied a pew at the mass, being unable to listen the abuse of her husband, left her seat and jamming the door of the new walked out of church. Mr. Joyce and a number of his friends called on Father O'Halloran yesterday evening to have an explanation of his attack on him. Father O'Halloran, it is said, expressed regret for what he had said about Mr. Joyce and promised to retract next Sunday.

Mr. Joyce and Mr. James Kirk, editor of the Free Press, had an animated argument on Milwaukee avenue yesterday afternoon over an article published in the Gazette in reference to Mr. Joyce's action in remaining away from the board meeting at which Mr. Hatter was elected, and a question of privilege was raised as if a fight between the editor and the member of the School Board was imminent, but the argument ended peacefully.

MAXWELL DOES NOT REMEMBER.

He Visited Dr. Roemmlich He Has Forgotten the Fact.

Maxwell is still unable to recall the visit which Dr. Roemmlich and his wife think he made to their home with Preller on the Saturday preceding the killing. Dr. Roemmlich is a dentist who lives on Fourth street, opposite the Southern Hotel, and has an office at No.

Olive street. He says, on the Saturday preceding the killing, two men called at his ne while he was away and inquired for n. One was a small man and the other air size. The wife of Dr. Roemmich told her husband that she had not seen him and she left a small man remarking that the woman was some chloroform from him. When they they remarked that they were neighbors, as they were stopping at the Southern Hotel. One man showed them a set of photographs of Maxwell and Freller in an street photographer's window and positively identified them as the men who called the chloroform. The fact that they had been together for three days before Maxwell told what their mission was in Freller's hearing would indicate that the latter was to be operated upon by his companion and has a tendency to naturally associate with a person who is capable of committing a crime of this kind. Dr. Roemmich now firmly believes this to be the led in a similar manner by experienced

The reason Dr. Roemmich did not speak of the matter in his statement was did not attach any importance to the fact and did not want to be bothered by pending court. He is now anxious, however, to lay the matter before the Governor.

Dr. Roemmich was possibly called at Dr. Roemmich's office with a caller he has no recollection of doing so. He does not remember having ever gone anywhere with Freiler to purchase chloroform, or does he remember attempting to get it at any place except Fernow's drug store. He does not claim, positively, that he did not go to Dr. Roemmich, but says if he did he is unable to recall the date.

He is unable to recall the date of the visit. A description of the dentist's office failed to refresh Maxwell's memory.
